This work was supported by a grant from the Indian Health Service and administered through the Northwest Portland Area Indian Health Board.

Dedication

In the past, I have dedicated my works to those patients with FAS and FASD and their families who have taught me so much and have been guiding forces in my life. This book, however, is dedicated with deep love and gratitude to the one person who has stood beside me for the past twenty years. It is trite, but in this case, very true: there are simply no words of thanks that say enough to this person. So, in the best words I can find, this manual is dedicated to my husband, Marshall Bruce Harmon, who stuck to his vows of “Until death do us part” and back again.

Acknowledgments

Over the course of the past five years, it has been my great pleasure to work with Dr. Marlene Echohawk of the Indian Health Service. It is through her dedication to Native children and their families that this venture has been brought to fruition. No one person creates a work such as this on their own. There are, literally, hundreds of people who have contributed to this effort. While only a few can be named in these pages, this does not lessen the appreciation I have for all who have given so generously of their time and support.

Special thanks are owed to the hundreds of people that have shared their lives with the author for nearly twenty-five years. Without their courage, perseverance, and humor, none of this could be written. This is also true of a group of very special people in my life: Dr.'s Sterling and Sandy Clarren, Sharon Beck, and Julie Gelo. Love and thanks go to my nieces, Traci, Sydney, Taylor, Shannon, Jensen, and, most of all, to my beloved aunt, Lucile LaDue. A special thank you to Dr. Mary Butcher for ensuring I survived long enough to write this book.

For the past three years, I have also had the pleasure of working with one of the most competent, efficient, and talented production teams ever: Kathy Ryor, Heath Fugate, Nancy Woo, and Katie Earll. Without their exemplary efforts, this project could not have been completed.

I would also like to thank the reviewers of this manual who gave as unselfishly to this manual as they have to the special children of this world: Kathryn Alexander NPAIHB, Leslie Chernan, PhD, Lynn DeLorme NPAIHB, Julie Gelo, Barry (BL) Levitt, Becke Macke, Kathy Masis, Terry McAnally, Dee Robertson, Alan Willoughby J.D., and Georgianna Wilton.

And, of course, a special thank you to Creator and all the gifts he bestows.
